

Authors

Joel D. Aron

Federal Systems Division, Federal Systems Center, Gaithersburg, Maryland.

Military engineering (U. S. Military Academy, B.S., 1948). Joined IBM in 1954. Has had a variety of technical, managerial, and consulting assignments in applied science and development, with emphasis on defense and scientific systems.

Gerhard Bender

IBM 7090 Data Center, Duesseldorf, Germany.

Mathematics and programming. Has been concerned with the writing of scientific and commercial application programs since joining IBM in 1959. After two years of programming support, participated for 18 months in the design of BOS/360 at the systems development laboratory in Endicott, New York. Presently responsible for systems programming at the Duesseldorf data center.

A. Robert Cenfetelli

Systems Development Division, Endicott, New York.

Systems Programming. Joined IBM efforts in direct-access storage devices and disk file organization in 1961. Presently responsible for the development of advanced data management and design techniques for intermediate computers.

David N. Freeman

Triangle Universities Computation Center, Research Triangle Park, North Carolina.

Mathematics and operations research (Ph.D., Cornell University, 1963). Joined IBM in 1958 for analysis and programming of simulation programs. IBM Fellowship studies at Cornell University from 1961-63. Held various managerial positions in development of IBM SYSTEM/360 programs with responsibility for planning of small commercial system programs. Presently associate director and manager of systems at the Triangle Universities Computation Center.

Vittorio Mei

IBM Italy, Torino, Italy.

Physics (Dr., University of Torino, 1963). Joined IBM Italy in 1964 as systems engineer; temporarily assigned to Endicott, New York, DOS/360 development group. Currently engaged in areas of tailored software and data management.

Dominique H. Ricour

IBM France, Paris, France.

Engineering (Ecole Centrale, Paris, 1961). Joined IBM's advanced marketing development in 1963, concerned with real-time system applications. Presently on temporary assignment with the DOS/360 development group at Endicott, New York.

J. DeWitt Smith

Systems Development Division, Endicott, New York.

Mathematics (M.A., Peabody College, 1962). Joined IBM in 1963 as programming writer documenting control programs, especially in the areas of DOS/360 and TOS/360.