

In selecting and preparing manuscripts for publication, the editors rely heavily on the advice of referees, professionals who are willing to contribute their time and energy to maintaining the standards of this journal. By tradition, refereeing is anonymous, so an author never knows the exact source of advice, comments or criticism. In evaluating contributions, we usually select at least three referees. To ensure impartiality, at least one referee is chosen from outside IBM.

Refereeing is purely voluntary; the only direct reward referees receive is the benefit of seeing a revised and strengthened paper in print. Listed below are those who served as referees from January 1975 through March 1977. On joining the journal, I thought it would be appropriate to maintain a list of referees and to thank them periodically on behalf of our contributors, the editors and our readers. On leaving, I would like to add my personal thanks to each of them for helping to make my three years as Editor a truly rewarding and enriching experience.
