

The accompanying materials (media + documents) for UNIX are intended for your use with the following proviso:

The program and information transmitted herewith is and shall remain the property of Bell Laboratories. It is provided solely for your use within the Bell System for Bell System purposes and should be disclosed only to those with a need to know. Any program transmitted herewith should be executed on a single piece of computer equipment only, and the written permission of Bell Laboratories must be secured before executing any program on any additional piece of computer equipment. Neither program nor information may be reproduced in any way and may not be made available in any form to non-Bell System personnel without the express written permission of Bell Laboratories. All restrictions set forth herein are fully applicable to those supplying, programming or maintaining computer equipment on which any program transmitted herewith is executed.